ROOSEVELT NOMINATED.

Amid a wild tumult of applause, the waving of banners and overflow of feelings, Theodore Roosevelt was yesterday selected by the Republicans of the country to lead them into the fray—and on to victory in the coming national election. The enthusiasm which had been lacking up to the very moment of his nomination let itself loose then, and Roosevelt was given such an ovation as few men are privileged to receive. It was not the applause which follows the winning of a great victory, the giving-way to one's feeling held in leash for weeks and months. There was nothing whatever of that element in the tumult which followed the announcement of the nomination. There could not have been because the nomination was by acclamation, without a contest, without a dissenting vote. Therefore the reception was not the outburst of enthusiasm following a victory over a rival. Rather it was a sincere compliment to the man himself who had been chosen unanimously. It was the expression of the utmost confidence in his ability and his integrity, a belief that of all men in the public eye he is at present the man most fitted to head the national ticket. Through some of his actions Theodore Roosevelt brought himself into disfavor with certain sections of the Republican party, but the vast mass of the party had confidence in him and stood by him until they saw all traces of opposition swept away and the man triumphantly nominated for the presidency, to succeed himself. But however criticized, it can scarcely be denied that in all his actions Roosevelt has acted with a sincerity of purpose, in spite of the attacks that were made against him. The vote of approval will be registered by the voters of the country later.

DISFIGURING THE STREETS.

The Montpelier city council has "requested" that the circus posters which have been flying from the wires on its two principal streets for several weeks be taken down. It is understood that Supt. Andrus of the electric railroad who granted the permission for them to be put up, with the sanction of Mayor Corry, has said that they will be taken down. For a few days the posters are a novelty, then they become monotonous, and finally they become positively an eyesore. It is an effective means for advertising a circus or any other attraction, but the posters do not add to the attractiveness of the streets. Hence the mild action of the Montpelier council in "requesting" that they be removed is well taken. Some cities, Burlington for instance, have ordinances forbidding the use of wires in the streets for such a purpose.

Base ball is warming up with the season. There ought to be a tremendous crowd at the new league grounds tomorrow.

Editor Johnson of the Randolph Herald and News is apparently on the through train to a seat in the Vermont Senate next fall.

The Bell shouters, although they are in the lead for the governorship nomination, admit that it is anybody's race.

The national prohibition party continues to toy with General Nelson A. Miles, or vice versa, and each is coy.

"Teddy," with a good-sized grin on his face was the picture in the White House yesterday.

Speaker "Joe" Cannon was a pretty big gun himself at the Republican convention.

And Fairbanks comes in for a word of praise also.

Too Late.

"What's the matter, cry baby?"
"Boo-hoo! I thought it was now or not to go in swimming, and I've just remembered it was paw!"
—Chicago American.

The old hat is too heavy for this season.

It's time for the derby lid to be off, and the new straw lid to be on. Here are all the new straws—Java split, Canton braid—all good grades; also the Summer weights in soft hats.

All heads are welcome.

Four dozen Straw Hats, slightly soiled, were 50c, 75c, $1.00 and $1.50, for Saturday, 15c, 25c and 50c.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

Barton Landing company, No. 9, uniform rank, K. of P., was mustered in by Col. C. F. O. Tinker, of St. Johnsbury, assisted by Capt. C. M. Willey, of Barre, Friday evening, June 17. Twenty-eight of the 53 members were present.

"Green goods" circulars are being received in different parts of the state. An application for a sample of the goods is complied with by the sending of a new bill of perfectly legal issue. One person, who tried the experiment out of curiosity, received a genuine $2 and is now perfectly satisfied and will experiment no further. Just why the "green goods" purveyor doesn't pass his own "duplicate bills" instead of making others suddenly affluent does not appear.

Capt. Edward F. Griswold, senior partner in the wholesale grain firm of Griswold & Mackinnon of St. Johnsbury, sailed June 21 from Boston on the barque Carrie Winslow for the Rio de la Plata in South America. He will be gone from St. Johnsbury six months, the sailing voyage occupying sixty days each way. Captain Griswold has been around the world, has made a balloon ascension alone, and is now realizing a long anticipated desire to take an extended sailing trip.

The Vermont association of Boston will have an outing at Nantasket with a shore dinner at the Rockland house June 29. The dinner will include special music and after-dinner speaking by guests. The affair is in the hands of a committee consisting of Arthur L. Robinson, Albert Clarke, Eugene N. Foss, Charles K. Darling and N. L. Sheldon, says the Boston Transcript, but, notwithstanding, reciprocity with Canada and the general tariff question will not be discussed.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

1. My dear friend,
A round is pitched
By the city of Barre
A mild surprise
A round is written
On her throat
Caused doubt of what
It might denote
A kiss be printed
On her lips
Did all with joy
Beyond all else
—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Not Changeable.
"Isn't this climate changeable?" asked the newcomer.
"No," answered the old inhabitant rather brusquely. "It ain't changeable. If it was, don't you s'pose we'd have traded it off for somethin' else long ago?"—Washington Star.

Taking a Chance.
He—I am marrying her for her money.
She—But money does not always lead to happiness.
He—No, but I thought it might facilitate the search.—Town Topics.

Hammock Harmony.
Last year's hammock is ragged and slim.
It won't carry her, and much less him.
She's made up her mind there's nothing to do
But get another hammock strong enough
For two.

FRENCH MINISTER STONED.

Haitians Seem to Be Looking For More Trouble.

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, June 24.—The attack on the French minister here, M. Deprez, who was struck by a stone thrown by one of the guards on duty at the palace, was the outcome of the feeling among the population and the government against foreigners, the natives desiring to hold them responsible for the wretched financial situation of Haiti. The proceedings against the French and German officials of the National bank charged with participation in the issue of $200,000 in fraudulent securities early in 1903 have not been ended. Some of the officials are still in prison, and others have sought safety in flight. Persons prominently connected with the National bank have been protesting against the long detention in prison of the officials who are under charges.

The statement that France will demand redress for the attack on her minister is confirmed here.

MURDER LITTLE BROTHER.

Awful Deed of Two Young Indian Children.

Modena, Utah, June 24.—Two Indian children of Eagle Valley, Nev., have murdered their three-year-old brother. The oldest of the fratricides is seven years, a girl, and the other is but four, a boy.

Indian Jack, the father of the three children, and his wife left their tepee to haul wood and on returning to their tent found their youngest child with its ribs caved in and its backbone almost severed from its natural fastenings.

Owing to the fact that the two older children had shown a strange aversion to the dead child they were at once accused of the crime. They, however, maintain the reticence characteristic of the Indian and have refused to answer questions.

The father of the boy, who is an educated red man, is almost heartbroken over the affair.

Expects Perdicaris' Immediate Release.

Washington, June 24.—Consul General Gumme cables the state department under date of June 22 from Tangier that Shiek Vahid has consented to have Perdicaris and Vahley and the ransom exchanged within his territory provided the Moorish government will enter into a written obligation that he and his people shall not hereafter suffer the consequences. The necessary pledge has been authorized by the foreign minister, and Mr. Gumme expects that the prisoners will be released at once.

Held Up by Masked Men.

Memphis, Tenn., June 24.—A telephone message from Millington, a small village near this city, says that J. G. Ligon, a merchant of that place, has been held up by two masked men and robbed of more than $5,000. Ligon carried the money in a belt upon his person.

Bobwhite.

The city's heat grows stifling—
In the rich dress of a stray.
Resulting forest June times,
The last shade at mountain,
And sportive breeze are trifling
With blossoms in their play,
And here the honey rilling
From blossoms all the day.

Once more I lie and listen
To nature's music sweet;
Once more my old companions
Of woods and fields I meet.
I hear their myriad voices,
But clear above them all
And warmest in its welcome
Is bobwhite's cherry call.

And "Bobwhite!" is his greeting.
As in the golden time,
When I turned the stubble over,
When I reaped the hay and clover,
In the summer all too fleeting—
In summer's flowery prime,
While his song he kept repeating,
Which now inspires my rhyme—

Which oft aroused the brute indured,
And with a sportsman's glow
I'd sight the handle of my rake,
And vicious aim upon him take
And wish it were a gun instead,
To fire and lay him low,
Just to lift the feathers from his head,
My sportive skill to show.

Ah, the thought of willful murder
Brands with shame my face and brow!
I would pay you well, dear Robert,
Could I hear your music now,
Your love call to your flitting mate,
Brooding in her secret nest,
Would echo loud the fond heart throbs
For the one I love the best

And bring again those summer days
And glorious golden hours
When, boy and girl, we sought your haunts,
Together plucking flowers,
And tiptoe on an ancient stump
In the tall wheat, hid from view,
You loudly call "Bobwhite!" to us,
Which I whistled back to you.

Ah, my heart is sick with longing—
Vainly longing for your tune,
For the varied scenes of childhood,
For the meadow, dais and wildwood
And the thousand charms belonging
To the merry month of June!
Ah, the memories that come thronging
With thoughts of youth's bright June!
